to this country is the stipulation for the repeal of the eleventh article of the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, which imposed an obligation on the United States to indemnify Mexico for the depredations of the Indians on our frontier.

It is understood that an immense amount of claims against the United States has already accumulated under this stipulation would have been a constant source of interference and discussion between the two governments, and, for the sake of peace, as well as economy, we rejoice at its repeal.

Important as these stipulations, they are of infinite consequence to the government by the decision of the treaty in the Senate. Under this article the United States acquire a railway route south of the Gila and the valuable province of Sonora, embracing territory sufficient for two or three States.

In return for these important concessions, the United States agree to pay $20,000,000—$5,000,000 of which are to be retained to compensate the claimants to the Tehuacapan route. We did not anticipate so judicious a disposition of the surplus in the treasury.

The stipulations of the treaty, first, that the United States shall not interfere with the free trade of the country, and secondly, that it shall not interfere with the free trade of the country, and thirdly, that it shall not interfere with the free trade of the country, and fourthly, that it shall not interfere with the free trade of the country, and fifthly, that it shall not interfere with the free trade of the country, and sixthly, that it shall not interfere with the free trade of the country, and seventhly, that it shall not interfere with the free trade of the country, and eighthly, that it shall not interfere with the free trade of the country, and ninthly, that it shall not interfere with the free trade of the country, and tenthly, that it shall not interfere with the free trade of the country, and eleventhly, that it shall not

and twelfthly, that it shall not interfere with the free trade of the country, and thirteenthly, that it shall not interfere

fourteenthly, that it shall not interfere

fifteenthly, that it shall not interfere

sixteenthly, that it shall not interfere

seventeenthly, that it shall not interfere

eighteenthly, that it shall not interfere

nineteenthly, that it shall not interfere

twentiethly, that it shall not interfere

twenty-firstly, that it shall not interfere

ifornia, Oregon, and Washington, in active service or in port; also the whole number on the Pacific coast, employed or otherwise; also whether the naval force then in 1853 was sufficient to prevent the departure to foreign territory of any unlawful expedition; also the number of force it. His opponents had taken to keep up an army and navy, and were entitled to their position. There was one point in California, from which, such an expedition could sail, and that was San Francisco; and a single steamer, with one gun, in that harbor was sufficient to prevent the departure to foreign

ships on the Atlantic coast, employed actively or other-

THE HAVEN QUESTION—POSITION OF SOUTH AMERICA.

Mr. Kirt (dem.) of N. Y., in his opening remarks, said the Administration in its attempt to restore the government to its original simplicity, will have the support of South America. The people of the South have been in a position to mingle in the strife of party or passion, and have been able to do so, but they have been able to do so, but they have been able to do so, but they have been able to do so, but they have been able to do so, but they have been able to do so,
